Autism Spectrum Disorder: Strategies for Educators and Parents

March 15, 2004 4:00-7:30 p.m.
Plainfield District Office Board Room
15732 Howard Street, Plainfield Illinois 60544

This presentation will discuss various components related to working with children with autism spectrum disorders. The session will provide communication techniques and other “best practices” strategies. Participants will also have the opportunity to explore some toys and play materials that have been successfully used in communication therapy and playgroup situations for children with autism. Visual systems for use in home, school and community will be displayed. Additionally, participants will have the opportunity to hear a parent’s perspective on how to incorporate many of these techniques into daily family life at home and in the community. Come prepared to play, interact and see how parents and professionals can work together to make life fun and exciting for children with autism!
