This course provides students firsthand exposure to international business in the context of global competition. This course will include visits to businesses, cultural, and historical sites throughout Costa Rica. Costa Rica has been called ‘The Silicon Valley’ of Central America and is home to businesses such as Intel, Microsoft and GE. The country is also known for it’s diverse landscape which students will get the chance to see firsthand. Students will also have the opportunity to practice their Spanish language skills with locals throughout the trip. A day of service is included in the trip as well.
